Report Eleven hikers enjoyed a beautiful day on the Rio Rancho Bosque. We were greeted by a large flock of white seagulls up from the Gulf of Mexico flying and squawking overhead. They did look a lot like snow geese but definitely sounded like gulls. A neighbor walking close by us said they were gulls. Later we encountered cranes overhead trying to decide who was in charge. A decision was finally made and they headed north. Two hikers enjoyed skipping stones in one of our stops by the Rio Grande.

Thanks to Paul for driving and Carl and Joel for their great pictures.
